MESSAGE FROM WEBB MCKINNEY: PRESIDENT OF HP'S BUSINESS CUSTOMER ORGANIZATION AND HP-COMPAQ MERGER INTEGRATION MANAGER SETS THE RECORD STRAIGHT ON COMMENTS USED BY WALTER HEWLETT IN AN ADVERTISEMENT.

WALTER HEWLETT RAN AN ADVERTISEMENT IN THE WALL STREET JOURNAL ON FEB. 13 THAT INCLUDED CONTENT TAKEN OUT OF CONTEXT FROM AN INTERVIEW WITH AN ONLINE PUBLICATION THAT WEBB CONDUCTED SOME NINE MONTHS AGO WHEN HE WAS THE VICE PRESIDENT OF HP'S PC ORGANIZATION.

Dear all,

As the proposed HP-Compaq merger draws closer to the March 19 (HP) and March 20 (Compaq) shareholder vote, you may see more and more advertising and press coverage, aided by Walter Hewlett, that takes public statements previously made by myself and other HP executives out of context in an effort to fuel the proxy fight.

When I was vice president for HP's PC Organization and managing the PC business, I spent a lot of time speaking with the press about the importance of growing the PC business and providing our customers with a total enterprise solution. Obviously, my press activities at the time had nothing to do with a proposed HP-Compaq merger.

I was occasionally asked by reporters at the time whether it made sense for HP to merge with a PC company. My response was along the lines of what was quoted in the ad, namely that it is hard to find a successful example of one company with a PC business buying another, and that by and large, consolidation should happen the old-fashioned way, by gaining market share.

In that particular May 2001 interview, the story was about the sale of the PC business assets of Micron Electronics. It is inappropriate and completely out of context for Walter Hewlett, however, to suggest those comments have relevance to our merger with Compaq or that I believe those comments apply to the Compaq merger.

One of the misperceptions of this merger is that it is just a PC merger. This is not merely a PC merger. From the conception of the proposed merger, we have approached it from the point-of-view of the enterprise business, not the PC business. Yes, we will benefit from bringing together the number 3 and number 2 PC companies worldwide in HP and Compaq, respectively, but this is a far different situation than being asked to consider an HP merger in the context of a much smaller PC company. In addition, I firmly believe that HP's revenue loss modeling in the PC area (as a % of revenue loss) already reflects the risks I referred to. Even with such a loss, this merger is still attractive.

We are merging with Compaq to become a better, stronger partner for our customers, and a stronger ally for our partners, and to create business model and economic leverage.

Thank you,
Webb
