VALIDUS HAS THE SUPERIOR OFFER FOR TRANSATLANTIC

- Validus Offer Provides Greater Market Value
- Transatlantic's Actions Entrench Board and Trample Stockholder Rights
- Transatlantic's Adoption of Poison Pill Will Not Stop Validus Pursuit of Exchange Offer

Pembroke, Bermuda July 28, 2011 Validus Holdings, Ltd. (NYSE: VR) ( Validus or the Company ) today responded to statements by Transatlantic Holdings, Inc. (NYSE: TRH) ( Transatlantic ) regarding Validus Exchange Offer.

Edgar Filing: TRANSATLANTIC HOLDINGS INC - Form 425

Ed Noonan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Validus, said, "We are disappointed but not surprised by today's response from the Transatlantic Board, particularly given their prior demand that we agree to a restrictive standstill before entering into discussions regarding our Superior Proposal. We believe their insistence on a standstill agreement is nothing more than a poorly disguised attempt to prevent us from bringing our Superior Proposal to Transatlantic stockholders. Today, the Transatlantic Board has taken further steps to entrench themselves by establishing a poison pill, initiating meritless legal action, and changing corporate by-laws in an apparent effort to more easily manipulate stockholder meetings. These actions appear to be intentionally designed to trample on the rights of Transatlantic's stockholders.

Validus believes that these actions by the Transatlantic directors—willfully burying their heads in the sand and blaming it on their ill-advised acquisition agreement with Allied World—are inconsistent with their fiduciary duties to Transatlantic's owners.

Transatlantic is spreading misinformation about Validus' Superior Offer in an effort to hide the simple fact that Validus' offer provides greater market value than the inferior Allied World takeover offer. For example:

- Validus has the Superior Offer. Validus' offer provides a 27.1% premium to the June 10, 2011 Transatlantic unaffected share price of $44.01,<sup>(1)</sup> and as of yesterday's close, a 4.0% ($1.95 per Transatlantic share) premium to the implied value of the Allied World takeover offer.<sup>(2)</sup> The implied value of the Allied World takeover offer is a 6.3% discount to the Transatlantic share price.<sup>(2)</sup>

- Validus Superior Offer has substantially the same conditionality as the Allied World takeover offer, as reflected in our offer documents, and there is a clear path to completion.
- Transatlantic and Allied World are now attempting to rewrite their agreement. Their agreement provides that only a transaction in which Transatlantic stockholders would not own a majority of the shares of the combined company can be a superior proposal. Transatlantic is now attempting to argue against Validus Superior Offer because Transatlantic stockholders would not own a majority of the combined company. If Transatlantic is really serious, then their acquisition agreement with Allied World has created a catch-22 that would effectively prevent Transatlantic stockholders from ever receiving the benefits from any competing offer.
- Transatlantic continues to insist that Validus sign a restrictive standstill agreement in order to enter into discussions. We believe that this position is entirely at odds with the Transatlantic Board's fiduciary duties and flies in the face of their previous statement that it would be a breach of their fiduciary duties not to enter into discussions with Validus.

Noonan concluded, The Transatlantic Board clearly has no intention to enter into good-faith discussions with Validus about maximizing value for Transatlantic stockholders. We will not be deterred by the Transatlantic's Board's irresponsible tactics of entrenchment and are determined to complete our Superior Proposal for the benefit of Transatlantic's stockholders. Validus continues to urge Transatlantic stockholders to make their voices heard and send a message to their Board by rejecting the proposed Allied World takeover offer and tendering their shares into Validus Exchange Offer.

Details of Validus Exchange Offer

Under the terms of Validus Exchange Offer, Transatlantic stockholders would receive 1.5564 Validus voting common shares and $8.00 in cash for each share of Transatlantic common stock they own. The Exchange Offer will expire at 5:00 p.m., Eastern time on Friday, September 30, 2011, unless extended. The offering documents, including a preliminary prospectus/offer to exchange and a related letter of transmittal, describing the Exchange Offer and the means for Transatlantic stockholders to tender shares of Transatlantic common stock into the Exchange Offer will be delivered to Transatlantic stockholders. Stockholder questions regarding the Exchange Offer or requests for offering documents should be directed to Validus Information Agent for the Exchange Offer, Innisfree M&A Incorporated, toll-free at (877) 717-3929 (banks and brokers may call collect at (212) 750-5833).

Transatlantic's adoption of a poison pill will not stop Validus pursuit of the Exchange Offer.

Solicitation AGAINST Proposed Allied World Takeover

As previously announced on July 20, 2011, Validus has filed a preliminary proxy statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with the special meeting of stockholders of Transatlantic, urging them to vote AGAINST the inferior Allied World takeover of Transatlantic in order to preserve the ability of Transatlantic stockholders to benefit from Validus Superior Proposal.

Stockholders who have questions, or need assistance in voting their shares, should call Validus proxy solicitors, Innisfree M&A Incorporated, toll-free at (877) 717-3929 (banks and brokers call collect at (212) 750-5833).

(1) Based on Transatlantic ($44.01) closing price on June 10, 2011 and Validus ($30.81) closing price on July 12, 2011, the date of the Validus proposal.

(2) Based on Validus ($27.28), Transatlantic ($51.78) and Allied World ($55.12) closing prices on July 27, 2011.
