(a) Reflects anticipated cash reimbursements pursuant to awards from the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 to Potomac Electric Power Company for the implementation of an advanced metering infrastructure system, direct load control, distribution automation, and communications infrastructure, and to Atlantic City Electric Company for the implementation of direct load control, distribution automation, and communications infrastructure.

Power Delivery

The projected capital expenditures listed in the table for distribution (other than Blueprint for the Future), transmission (other than the Mid Atlantic Power Pathway (“MAPP”) project) and gas delivery are primarily for facility replacements and upgrades to accommodate customer growth and reliability.

Blueprint for the Future construction costs relate to an initiative that combines traditional energy efficiency programs with new technologies and systems to help customers manage their energy use and reduce the total cost of energy.

MAPP is a new 152-mile interstate transmission line to be located in northern Virginia, Maryland, and the Delmarva Peninsula.

PHI's projected capital expenditures are reviewed periodically by PHI and its subsidiaries, and are subject to modification at any time, and from time to time, to take into account a broad range of factors, including, without limitation, changes in the business plans of PHI and its subsidiaries, the economy, capital and credit market conditions, regulatory requirements and governmental policies, environmental laws, population growth rates and demographic patterns, competition, taxation, and inflation.

The projected capital expenditures and construction costs, and the description thereof, are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 21E of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, and covered by the safe harbor created by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. As such they are not guarantees of future performance, and actual results could differ materially from the projections. Neither PHI nor any of its subsidiary registrants undertake any obligation to update any of these projections to reflect events or circumstances after the date on which such statements are made or to reflect the occurrence of unanticipated events.
