Economic Review

Overall, the annual period was one of strong yet moderating economic growth and contained inflation both in the U.S. and globally. For the first three quarters of 2018, U.S. Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth registered an average of 3.3%, the highest three-quarter growth rate since 2014. Fourth quarter GDP growth is widely expected to remain healthy but somewhat slower, based on several headwinds that dampened investor sentiment, including a Federal government shutdown, a slowing global economy, an unresolved trade war between the U.S. and China and a wobbly housing market.

During the annual period, the U.S. labor market remained healthy, as monthly job gains averaged more than 200,000 for the year. December 2018 was especially strong, with a job increase of 312,000. This pushed the unemployment rate lower, from 4.1% at the beginning of the calendar year to 3.9% at the end of December 2018. Average hourly earnings, year over year, benefited from the strong U.S. labor market, increasing from a 2.8% to a 3.2% growth rate, its highest level since 2009. Manufacturing was another rather consistently strong sector of the economy during 2018. The ISM Manufacturing Survey, an important measure, registered close to 60 each of the first 11 months, representing the highest readings in several years. December 2018 was the weakest of the year with a softer ISM Manufacturing Survey reading of 54.1. Because of this economic strength overall, inflation picked up modestly but remained relatively tame and below the expectations of the Federal Reserve (the Fed). The broadest measure of inflation, which the Fed closely follows, i.e. the core Personal Consumption Expenditure price index, which excludes food and energy, rose from 1.5% in January 2018 to 1.9% on a year over year basis as of November 2018 (latest data available) and averaged a low 1.6%.

Prompted by this economic growth backdrop and declines in the unemployment rate, the Fed raised its targeted federal funds rate four times in 2018—in March, June, September and December—bringing it to a range of 2.25% to 2.50%. At the end of the annual period, Fed policymakers continued to adhere to the belief that there is strong potential for the currently low unemployment rate to raise wages and thereby put pressure on the inflation rate. The hikes in the federal funds rate mostly affected short-term fixed income securities, whose yields rose significantly during the annual period. For example, the two-year U.S. Treasury note started the annual period with a yield of 1.88% and ended December 2018 with a yield of 2.48%, an increase of 60 basis points. (A basis point is 1/100th of a percentage point.) Longer-term fixed income securities fared somewhat better, since they have greater sensitivity to inflation and, thereby, benefited from the moderate inflation readings. The bellwether 10-year U.S. Treasury note began the annual period with a yield of 2.40% and ended December with a yield of 2.69%, up 29 basis points. The significant upward move in short-term rates created a flattening of the yield curve, meaning the differential in yields between short-term rates and long-term rates narrowed. Short-term rates already saw an inversion of the yield curve, as the yield on the two-year Treasury was temporarily higher than that on the five-year Treasury toward the end of the annual period.

Outside of the U.S., the economies of China, Europe and the emerging markets began to slow during the annual period. With the U.S. and China involved in trade conflicts, wherein the U.S. has instituted tariffs on certain Chinese goods and China has retaliated in kind, certain industries within the U.S. and internationally have been hurt. Equity markets did not take this downbeat news well, experiencing great volatility, especially during the last quarter of 2018. Indeed, at year-end 2018, the investment climate was marked by uncertainty. Equity investors were worried the ongoing tightening policy of the Fed and trade conflict with China may cause a major slowdown in U.S. economic growth. This, in turn, drove a flight to safety in fixed income securities, pushing up the prices of higher quality bonds. On the commodities front, markets overall declined during the annual period, hampered by the strong U.S. dollar, which rose from mid-April 2018; a collapse in oil prices from early October 2018; and the ongoing U.S.-China trade war. Gold prices remained rather range-bound as a result of the tug-of-war between the effects of rising U.S. Treasury yields, which reduced the relative appeal of precious metals, and heightened market volatility, which led to a flight to perceived safe havens.

Equity Market Review

U.S. equities, as measured by the S&P 500® Index<sup>3</sup>, declined 4.38% during the 12 months ended December 31, 2018, its worst calendar year performance since 2008.

As 2018 began, the momentum of late 2017 carried into January amid strengthening economic growth, rising corporate earnings and continued optimism surrounding the tax reform enacted in December 2017. The U.S. equity market rally came to an abrupt halt in early February, however, after unexpectedly strong wage growth sparked fears the Fed would be compelled to speed up its pace of interest rate increases. Such market speculation stoked a sharp rise in bond yields and an increase in equity market volatility. Concerns about Fed monetary policy tightening were further exacerbated by solid U.S. labor and inflation data. Stocks subsequently recovered, as concerns about the Fed gradually eased, but the markets turned lower once again in March in reaction to potentially unfavorable changes in U.S. trade policy. Despite these fluctuations, which stood in marked contrast to the unusually low volatility of 2017, the S&P 500® Index closed the first quarter with only a modest decline of -0.76%.

By the end of the annual period, the Fed had hiked interest rates four times and communicated an upbeat view of its economic outlook, spurred by strong U.S. labor and inflation data. Despite strong fundamentals, investor sentiment was weighed upon throughout the calendar year by escalating trade tensions, fears of a global economic slowdown and populist politics. After second and third calendar quarters of generally solid gains, supported by a combination of robust economic growth, strong corporate profits and rising earnings estimates, U.S. equities fell sharply again in the fourth quarter of 2018, as investor sentiment rapidly deteriorated on heightened trade and political uncertainty. In particular, U.S. equities plunged in December 2018 on renewed investor fears sparked by, among other factors, the partial Federal government shutdown, the U.S. President's criticism of Fed Chair Powell, and in a delayed response to an earlier sell-off in global rates. The S&P 500® Index's 9.03% decline in December 2018 was its worst December return since 1931.

As was the case for 2017, growth stocks significantly outperformed value stocks across the capitalization spectrum of the U.S. equity market for the annual period ended December 31, 2018, though value did outperform growth on a relative basis in the fourth calendar quarter, reversing the trend of the prior seven consecutive quarters. While all capitalization segments posted negative returns, large-cap stocks performed best, followed at some distance by mid-cap stocks and then small-cap stocks. (All as measured by the FTSE Russell indices.)<sup>3</sup>

In the S&P 500® Index, four sectors posted positive absolute returns and seven generated negative returns during the annual period. Health care, utilities, consumer discretionary and information technology were the best performing sectors in the S&P 500® Index, as measured by total return, and the weakest performing sectors in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period were energy, materials, industrials and financials. (After the close of business on September 28, 2018, the telecommunications services sector was renamed the communication services sector and was broadened to include certain companies from the information technology and consumer discretionary sectors that facilitate communication and offer related content and information through various media.)

All told, the U.S. equity markets outperformed the international equity markets during the annual period. Developed and emerging market equities, as measured by the MSCI EAFE Index<sup>3</sup> and MSCI Emerging Markets Index<sup>3</sup>, respectively, posted annual returns of -13.79% and -14.58%, respectively, weighed on by political, economic and protectionism concerns, including

Italian political and budgetary turmoil, ongoing unpredictability around the U.S.-North Korea summit, fears of a global economic slowdown, populist politics, elevated political uncertainty in Europe, including ongoing Brexit negotiations, and trade war fears—all despite relatively strong fundamentals. Central bank tightening, a partial U.S. government shutdown and a strong U.S. dollar further pressured international equities.

Fixed Income Market Review

The broad U.S. investment grade fixed income market, as measured by the Bloomberg Barclays US Aggregate Bond Index<sup>4</sup>, posted a return of 0.01% during the annual period. Less accommodative central bank policy both domestically and globally put pressure on shorter-term interest rates, with a more modest increase in longer-term rates given still-low inflation. This caused a flattening of the yield curve. While rates rose across the yield curve, or spectrum of maturities, interest rates on maturities of two years and less rose most. Indeed, making headlines was the spread, or yield differential, between the two-year and 10-year portion of the yield curve, where the spread flattened from 53 basis points at year-end 2017 to just 20 basis points at year-end 2018, and, as mentioned earlier, the spread between two- and five-year maturities temporarily inverted in early December 2018—for the first time in more than a decade. This spread is closely watched as an indicator of a slowing economy and of a possible buildup of recessionary pressures.

Over the course of the annual period, the yield on the three-month U.S. Treasury bill rose approximately 106 basis points, the yield on the two-year U.S. Treasury note increased approximately 60 basis points, and the yield on the five-year U.S. Treasury note rose approximately 31 basis points. The yield on the bellwether 10-year U.S. Treasury note increased approximately 29 basis points, and the yield on the 30-year U.S. Treasury bond rose approximately 28 basis points during the annual period.

Broadly speaking, it was a “risk off” environment within the taxable fixed income market, wherein investors’ aversion to risk heightened dramatically from that seen during 2017. While most non-government bond sectors posted negative absolute returns, U.S. Treasuries and the highest rated securitized bonds posted modestly positive returns, significantly outperforming the higher risk corporate bond sector, which was out of favor for much of the year. Similarly, within the corporate bond sector, higher rated bonds outperformed lower rated bonds. CCC-rated bonds, for instance, the lowest-rated high yield bonds, trailed AAA-rated bonds, the highest rated investment grade bonds, by almost 500 basis points. New issuance of investment grade corporate bonds was down after its robust 2017 level, and corporate bonds saw a significant spread widening. Investors were also put off by declining credit metrics, prompted in part by a record number of share buybacks.

The Morningstar Rating<sup>TM</sup> for funds, or “star rating”, is calculated for managed products (including mutual funds, variable annuity and variable life subaccounts, exchange-traded funds, closed-end funds, and separate accounts) with at least a three-year history. Exchange-traded funds and open-ended mutual funds are considered a single population for comparative purposes. It is calculated based on a Morningstar Risk-Adjusted Return measure that accounts for variation in a managed product’s monthly excess performance, placing more emphasis on downward variations and rewarding consistent performance. The top 10% of products in each product category receive 5 stars, the next 22.5% receive 4 stars, the next 35% receive 3 stars, the next 22.5% receive 2 stars, and the bottom 10% receive 1 star. The Overall Morningstar Rating for a managed product is derived from a weighted average of the performance figures associated with its three-, five-, and 10-year (if applicable) Morningstar Rating metrics. The weights are: 100% three-year rating for 36-59 months of total returns, 60% five-year rating/ 40% three-year rating for 60-119 months of total returns, and 50% 10-year rating/30% five-year rating/20% three-year rating for 120 or more months of total returns. While the 10-year overall star rating formula seems to give the most weight to the 10-year period, the most recent three-year period actually has the greatest impact because it is included in all three rating periods.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY (condensed) (unaudited)

The Fund's sole investment objective is long-term growth of capital.

Manager Discussion of Fund Performance

Below, Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc. portfolio manager Stephen E. Grant discusses the Fund's performance and positioning for the 12 months ended December 31, 2018.

How did the Fund perform during the annual period?

The Fund generated a total return of 1.39% during the 12 months ended December 31, 2018. This compares to the -4.38% return of the Fund's benchmark, the S&P 500® Index, during the same annual period.

What key factors were responsible for the Fund's performance during the 12-month reporting period?

The Fund significantly outperformed the S&P 500® Index during the 12-month reporting period, driven primarily by stock selection overall. Sector allocation decisions as a whole also contributed positively during the reporting period. Further, during the annual period, growth-oriented stocks outpaced value-oriented stocks by a wide margin. This style preference by investors at large proved a plus for the Fund, which emphasizes growth over value. However, large-cap stocks overall had smaller losses than mid- and small-cap stocks. This outperformance of large-cap stocks dampened the Fund's relative results, as the Fund emphasizes companies with lower market capitalizations within the S&P 500® Index.

Which equity market sectors most significantly affected Fund performance?

The Fund benefited most from effective stock selection in the industrials sector. Stock selection in the financials, information technology and consumer staples sectors further boosted the Fund's relative results. Having an underweighted allocation to financials, which lagged the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, and having an overweighted allocation to information technology, which outpaced the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, helped as well. Having no exposure to energy, the weakest sector in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, also added value.

Only two sectors detracted from the Fund's relative results during the annual period. Holding no position in the strong, albeit small, utilities sector dampened relative results. Stock selection in health care also modestly detracted.

What were some of the Fund's best-performing individual stocks?

Among the individual stocks that contributed most to the Fund's relative results were O'Reilly Automotive, which retails automotive aftermarket parts, accessories and equipment; Church & Dwight, which develops and manufactures household, personal care and specialty consumer products; and Idexx Laboratories, which provides diagnostic, detection and information systems for veterinary, food and water testing applications. Each of these stocks enjoyed robust double-digit gains during the annual period driven by stronger than expected operating performance.

Which stocks detracted significantly from the Fund's performance during the annual period?

The most significant detractors from the Fund's performance were those large-cap components of the S&P 500® Index the Fund did not own, including Microsoft and Amazon.com, which each posted strong gains during the annual period. However, the Fund's strategy is to invest lower on the capitalization spectrum. It does not typically invest in giant, mega-cap companies, with investment research and investment management firm Morningstar placing the Fund in its mid-cap growth category. Also, the Fund's holdings of LKQ, which distributes automotive products and services, and Acuity Brands, which designs, produces and distributes indoor and outdoor lighting and control systems for commercial and institutional, industrial, infrastructure and residential applications, detracted from the Fund's results. Each of these companies' shares declined during the annual period primarily because of weaker than expected operating performance.

How did the Fund use derivatives and similar instruments during the reporting period?

The Fund did not use derivatives during the reporting period.

Did the Fund make any significant purchases or sales during the annual period?

During the annual period, we established new Fund positions in hospice and palliative care services provider Chemed, electronic design automation solutions supplies for the global electronics market Synopsys and inpatient rehabilitative healthcare services provider Encompass Health. Each, in our view, have delivered consistent, attractive long-term growth in both earnings and stock price.

Among the largest eliminations from the Fund's portfolio were positions in consumer foods company General Mills, pharmaceuticals company Novo Nordisk and tobacco company British American Tobacco. In each case, we exited the Fund's position because the company was no longer generating the consistent long-term growth we seek.

Were there any notable changes in the Fund's weightings during the 12-month period?

We shifted from an underweight to an overweight in information technology during the 12-month period ended December 31, 2018 due to reorganization of the S&P 500® Index. There were no other material changes in the Fund's sector weightings.

How was the Fund positioned relative to its benchmark index at the end of December 2018?

As of December 31, 2018, the Fund was overweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the industrials, materials and information technology sectors. The Fund was underweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the financials and consumer discretionary sectors. The Fund was rather neutrally weighted relative to the Index in the consumer staples, health care and real estate sectors and had no allocations to the energy, communication services or utilities sectors on the same date.

What is your tactical view and strategy for the months ahead?

Regardless of market conditions, we intend to stay true to our time-tested investment discipline going forward, seeking to invest in companies that have demonstrated a solid history of consistent growth in both their earnings and stock price. In our view, these companies possess attractive portfolios of proprietary products and services that give them strong market positions and make them less vulnerable to swings in national and international economic conditions. At the same time, we believe the underlying stocks of these companies tend to be less volatile than the average stock in the S&P 500® Index. By maintaining our investment discipline, the Fund has historically provided a smoother ride to investors than its peer group averages. TABLE OF CONTENTS

VALUE LINE MID CAP FOCUSED FUND, INC.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY (condensed) (unaudited)

The Fund's sole investment objective is long-term growth of capital.

Manager Discussion of Fund Performance

Below, Value Line Mid Cap Focused Fund, Inc. portfolio manager Stephen E. Grant discusses the Fund's performance and positioning for the 12 months ended December 31, 2018.

How did the Fund perform during the annual period?

The Fund's Investor Class generated a total return of 4.72% during the 12 months ended December 31, 2018. This compares to the -4.38% return of the Fund's benchmark, the S&P 500® Index, during the same annual period.

What key factors were responsible for the Fund's performance during the 12-month reporting period?

The Fund significantly outperformed the S&P 500® Index during the 12-month reporting period, driven primarily by stock selection overall. Sector allocation decisions as a whole also contributed positively during the reporting period. Further, during the annual period, growth-oriented stocks outpaced value-oriented stocks by a wide margin. This style preference by investors at large proved a plus for the Fund, which emphasizes growth over value. However, large-cap stocks overall had smaller losses than mid- and small-cap stocks. This outperformance of large-cap stocks dampened the Fund's relative results, as the Fund, focused on mid-cap stocks, emphasizes companies with lower market capitalizations within the S&P 500® Index.

The Fund benefited most from effective stock selection in the industrials sector. Stock selection in the consumer staples and materials sectors further boosted the Fund's relative results. Having an underweighted allocation to financials, which lagged the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, and having no exposure to energy, the weakest sector in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, also added value.

Only partially offsetting these positive contributors was having an underweighted allocation to the strongly performing consumer discretionary sector, which detracted. Holding no position in the strong, albeit small, utilities sector also dampened relative results.

What were some of the Fund's best-performing individual stocks?

Among the individual stocks that contributed most to the Fund's relative results were Idexx Laboratories, which provides diagnostic, detection and information systems for veterinary, food and water testing applications; Rollins, which provides pest control services; and Heico, which manufactures and sells aerospace products and services to airlines, defense contractors and military agencies. Shares of each of these companies enjoyed solid double-digit gains during the annual period driven by stronger than expected operating performance.

Which stocks detracted significantly from the Fund's performance during the annual period?

During the annual period, the Fund was hurt most by not owning software behemoth Microsoft and e-commerce giant Amazon.com, which posted strong gains during the annual period. However, the Fund implements a focused strategy that invests primarily in mid-sized companies. Also, the Fund's positions in cooking equipment manufacturer Middleby and automotive products and services distributor LKQ detracted. Each of these companies' stocks experienced double-digit declines during the annual period on weaker than expected operating performance.

How did the Fund use derivatives and similar instruments during the reporting period?

The Fund did not use derivatives during the reporting period.

Did the Fund make any significant purchases or sales during the annual period?

This focused Fund ended the annual period with 36 holdings in its portfolio, unchanged from the start of the calendar year. We established new Fund positions during the annual period in climate control equipment manufacturer Lennox International, hospice and palliative care services provider Chemed, and insurance agency WR Berkley. Each of these companies, in our view, has demonstrated consistent and attractive long-term growth in both earnings and stock price. We eliminated the Fund's positions in convenience store operator Casey's General Stores, medical waste management services provider Stericycle, and automotive products and services distributor LKQ, the last of which was mentioned earlier. Each of these sales was based on our belief that these companies have diminishing long-term growth prospects.

Were there any notable changes in the Fund's weightings during the 12-month period?

We shifted from a neutral weighting to an overweight relative to the S&P 500® Index in materials and from an overweight to a neutral weighting relative to the S&P 500® Index in consumer staples during the 12-month period ended December 31, 2018. We also shifted from an underweight to an overweight in information technology during the annual period due to reorganization of the S&P 500® Index.

How was the Fund positioned relative to its benchmark index at the end of December 2018?

As of December 31, 2018, the Fund was overweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the industrials, materials and information technology sectors. The Fund was underweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the financials and consumer discretionary sectors and was rather neutrally weighted relative to the Index in the health care and consumer staples sectors on the same date. On December 31, 2018, the Fund held no positions at all in the energy, communication services, real estate or utilities sectors.

What is your tactical view and strategy for the months ahead?

Regardless of market conditions, we intend to stay true to our time-tested investment discipline going forward, seeking to invest in companies that have demonstrated a solid history of consistent growth in both their earnings and stock price. In our view, these companies possess attractive portfolios of proprietary products and services that give them strong market positions and make them less vulnerable to swings in national and international economic conditions. At the same time, we believe the underlying stocks of these companies tend to be less volatile than the average stock in the S&P 500® Index. By maintaining our investment discipline, the Fund has historically provided a smoother ride to investors than its peer group averages. Putting aside short-term ebbs and flows in the equity market, we believe the Fund's investments are likely to provide superior returns to our shareholders over the long term.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY (condensed) (unaudited)

The Fund's investment objective is to seek capital appreciation and income consistent with its asset allocation.

Manager Discussion of Fund Performance

Below, Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc. portfolio managers Cindy Starke and Liane Rosenberg discuss the Fund's performance and positioning for the 12 months ended December 31, 2018.

How did the Fund perform during the annual period?

The Fund's Investor Class generated a total return of -2.71% during the 12 months ended December 31, 2018. This compares to the -2.35% return of the Fund's blended benchmark, comprised 60% of the S&P 500® Index and 40% of the Bloomberg Barclays US Aggregate Bond Index (the Bloomberg Barclays Index), during the same annual period.

Were there any changes made to the Fund's investment strategy or objective with its name change?

The Fund's investment strategy did not change. Its investment objective was revised to "seek capital appreciation and income consistent with its asset allocation" rather than "income, as high and dependable as is consistent with reasonable risk and capital growth to increase total return."

What key factors were responsible for the Fund's performance during the 12-month reporting period?

The Fund modestly underperformed its blended benchmark, driven primarily by its asset allocation. Its overweight to equities and underweight to fixed income, relative to the blended benchmark, detracted, as equities underperformed fixed income during the annual period. That said, the equity portion of the Fund outperformed the -4.38% return of the S&P 500® Index, while the fixed income portion of the Fund slightly trailed the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period. Similarly, security selection in the equity portion of the Fund contributed positively, while security selection in the fixed income portion of the Fund detracted. The Fund had an average cash position of approximately 3%, which added value given the negative absolute returns for equities and flat returns for fixed income during the annual period.

Further, it proved to be a good time for our style of equity investing, as growth stocks significantly outpaced value stocks during the annual period across the capitalization spectrum, and the equity portion of the Fund was invested primarily in growth stocks.

Which equity market sectors most significantly affected Fund performance?

The equity portion of the Fund benefited most from having an overweighted allocation in health care, the best performing sector in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period. Effective stock selection in information technology and industrials also contributed positively as did having an underweighted allocation to industrials, the third weakest performer in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period.

The sectors that detracted most from the equity portion of the Fund's relative results during the annual period were communication services and consumer staples, wherein stock selection proved weak. Having an overweighted allocation to communication services, which underperformed the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, also hurt. Having no exposure to the utilities sector, which was the second strongest sector in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, dampened the Fund's relative results as well.

What were some of the Fund's best-performing individual stocks?

Contributing most to the equity portion of the Fund's relative results were positions in biotechnology company Juno Therapeutics, software-as-a-service solutions provider Zendesk and diabetes-focused medical device company DexCom.

Juno Therapeutics is a clinical stage biotechnology company focused on cellular-based immunotherapies that target patients' own cells to fight cancer. Its shares saw robust double-digit gains during the period the Fund held the position. In January 2018, Celgene announced its acquisition of Juno Therapeutics to expand Celgene's lymphoma program. We sold the Fund's position in Juno Therapeutics following the acquisition announcement. Zendesk's shares surged during the annual period, supported by strong quarterly results, solid execution and growing scale. The company also achieved net income profitability starting in the first quarter of 2018, which was sooner than the market expected. Shares of DexCom enjoyed a triple-digit gain during the annual period, largely driven by market penetration and strong execution. We opportunistically trimmed the Fund's positions in Zendesk and DexCom on strength through the annual period.

Which stocks detracted significantly from the Fund's performance during the annual period?

During the annual period, the stocks that detracted most from the equity portion of the Fund's performance were biopharmaceutical companies Celgene and Alexion Pharmaceuticals as well as producer of motion pictures, television programming and media networks Lions Gate Entertainment.

Celgene experienced a double-digit share price decline during the annual period, largely reflecting product pipeline risk as well as potential generic competition against its leading drug, Revlimid, upon its patent expiration in a few years. Alexion Pharmaceuticals' shares declined sharply during the annual period, despite making significant progress in its product pipeline, as biotechnology stocks as a whole were a weak spot in the strongly performing health care sector. Shares of Lions Gate Entertainment fell significantly during the annual period, reflecting lower than expected growth rates across its business segments, including persistent pressure on its Starz subscriber and profit growth.

Did the equity portion of the Fund make any significant purchases or sales?

We initiated Fund positions in Tencent Holdings, Splunk and Amarin during the annual period. Tencent Holdings is the world's largest online gaming company by revenue and the largest consumer Internet company in China by user scale and engagements. In our view, it is well positioned to benefit from secular growth in several markets, including online gaming, online advertising and financial technology. Splunk is a company in the fast-growing big data and data security industries. We believe it has a strong product portfolio addressing the growing need to monitor information technology systems amid rising complexities. Amarin is a biotechnology company focused on cardiovascular health, with, in our view, upside potential for sales growth over the next few years and net income profitability within the next 12 months. We established the Fund position in Amarin in September 2018 following the release of positive top-line results from the Vascepa cardiovascular outcomes trial, REDUCE-IT.

Conversely, in addition to the sale of Juno Therapeutics, mentioned earlier, we exited the Fund's position in Tesaro, another cancer therapeutics developer, following the announcement it would be acquired by GlaxoSmithKline at a value more than 60% of its prior-day close. We also liquidated the Fund's position in Monster Beverage, an energy drink company in the consumer staples sector. The sale was prompted by what we saw as the company's slowing growth prospects and a high valuation for this growth.

Were there any notable changes in the equity portion of the Fund's weightings during the 12-month period?

During the annual period, the Fund's allocations to the communication services, information technology and health care sectors increased relative to the S&P 500® Index, and its relative positions in the consumer discretionary, consumer staples and financials sectors decreased.

How was the equity portion of the Fund positioned relative to its benchmark index at the end of December 2018?

As of December 31, 2018, the Fund was overweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the health care, communication services, consumer discretionary and information technology sectors. The Fund was underweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the industrials, financials, consumer staples, real estate and energy sectors on the same date. The Fund had no exposure to the utilities and materials sectors at the end of December 2018.

What was the duration and yield curve strategy of the fixed income portion of the Fund?

Duration positioning in the fixed income portion of the Fund contributed positively to its performance relative to the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period. We kept the fixed income portion of the Fund's duration moderately shorter than that of the Bloomberg Barclays Index, which proved beneficial as interest rates rose during the annual period. Duration is a measure of the fixed income portion of the Fund's sensitivity to changes in interest rates.

Yield curve positioning overall had a rather neutral effect on the Fund's performance during the annual period. Yield curve indicates the spectrum of maturities within a particular sector.

Which fixed income market segments most significantly affected Fund performance?

A significantly overweighted allocation relative to the Bloomberg Barclays Index in investment grade corporate bonds early in the annual period detracted from the fixed income portion of the Fund's relative results most. Given the risk-off environment that developed as 2018 progressed, having an out-of-benchmark exposure to high yield corporate bonds, which underperformed the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period, and an underweighted allocation to U.S. Treasuries, which outperformed the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period, also hurt. Conversely, the fixed income portion of the Fund's overweight in structured products contributed positively. More specifically, the fixed income portion of the Fund had significant overweights relative to the Bloomberg Barclays Index in asset-backed securities and commercial mortgage-backed securities, both sectors that outperformed the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period. Being underweight international sovereign debt also added value, as this sector substantially underperformed the Bloomberg Barclays Index during the annual period. Issue selection proved most beneficial in high quality sectors with low credit risk, including U.S. agency securities and taxable municipal bonds.

Were there any notable changes in the fixed income portion of the Fund's weightings during the 12-month period?

We made several changes to the fixed income portion of the Fund's weightings during the annual period given the shift in market conditions from the "risk on" environment that dominated at the start of 2018 to the "risk off" environment that arose as the year progressed. We significantly reduced both its overweight to investment grade corporate bonds and its exposure to high yield corporate bonds, as we believed the demand for risk assets would continue to be muted for some time. We correspondingly increased the fixed income portion of the Fund's allocations to U.S. Treasuries and highly-rated securitized debt, including asset-backed securities and mortgage-backed securities. While maintaining its duration shorter than that of the Bloomberg Barclays Index, we did lengthen the fixed income portion of the Fund's duration modestly toward the end of the annual period, bringing it closer to a neutral position, in anticipation of a slowing economy and a more dovish Fed in 2019.

How was the fixed income portion of the Fund positioned relative to its benchmark index at the end of December 2018?

At the end of December 2018, the fixed income portion of the Fund remained overweight relative to the Bloomberg Barclays Index in investment grade corporate bonds, asset-backed securities, commercial mortgage-backed securities and taxable municipal bonds. The fixed income portion of the Fund remained underweight relative to the Bloomberg Barclays Index at the end of the annual period in U.S. Treasuries and international sovereign debt. The fixed income portion of the Fund also maintained an exposure to high yield corporate bonds, which are not a component of the Bloomberg Barclays Index.

How did the Fund's overall asset allocation shift from beginning to end of the annual period?

At December 31, 2018, the Fund had a weighting of approximately 84% in stocks, 12% in fixed income securities and 4% in cash equivalents. This compared to approximately 85% in stocks, 12% in fixed income securities and 3% in cash equivalents at the start of the annual period.

How did the Fund use derivatives and similar instruments during the reporting period?

Neither the equity portion of the Fund nor the fixed income portion of the Fund used derivatives during the reporting period.

What is your tactical view and strategy for the months ahead?

The S&P 500® Index's monthly loss of 9.03% in December 2018 was its worst December decline since 1931, and its 4.38% decline for the year was its worst calendar year performance since 2008. With this U.S. equity market sell-off, we believed the S&P 500® Index looked quite attractively valued at 14.6 times its forward price/earnings ratio at year-end 2018. We expect sales and earnings growth for the companies in the S&P 500® Index to remain positive in 2019 yet slow down from the high rates of growth seen in 2018, as the effect of corporate tax cuts fades and U.S. economic growth moderates. According to FactSet, consensus expectations for S&P 500® Index companies are for approximately 6% sales and 7% earnings growth rates in 2019. With this sales and earnings growth outlook still in expansion mode, equities trading at reasonable valuations and a Fed indicating it is going to be more "patient" in raising interest rates in 2019, we believe the backdrop for U.S. equities is favorable in the new year.

As growth-focused investors, we believe earnings growth is one of the primary drivers of share prices over time.

Given what we saw as a favorable backdrop for U.S. equities at the end of the annual period, we intend to continue to seek companies for the equity portion of the Fund's portfolio that are positioned to grow both their sales and earnings at a pace above the market and their peers. Notably, the equity portion of the Fund's holdings had an estimated three-year average sales growth rate of approximately 19% at the end of the annual period, more than double the S&P 500® Index's estimated three-year 8% sales growth rate as of December 31, 2018. The equity portion of the Fund also had a three- to five-year average estimated forward earnings growth rate of approximately 21%, more than 1.5x the S&P 500® Index's estimated average growth rate of 13%.

With equity valuations attractive at the end of the annual period, in our view, with short-term interest rates and inflation still low by historical standards and with the Fed taking a more "patient" approach to interest rate increases, we believe there are many stocks that offer compelling capital appreciation and total return potential.

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY (condensed) (unaudited)

The Fund's sole investment objective is long-term growth of capital.

Manager Discussion of Fund Performance

Below, Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. portfolio manager Cindy Starke discusses the Fund's performance and positioning for the 12 months ended December 31, 2018.

How did the Fund perform during the annual period?

The Fund's Investor Class generated a total return of 1.30% during the 12 months ended December 31, 2018. This compares to the -4.38% return of the Fund's benchmark, the S&P 500® Index, during the same annual period.

What key factors were responsible for the Fund's performance during the 12-month reporting period?

The Fund significantly outperformed the S&P 500® Index during the 12-month reporting period attributable to a combination of effective stock selection and sector allocation. Also, during the annual period, growth-oriented stocks outpaced value-oriented stocks by a wide margin. This style preference by investors at large proved a plus for the Fund, which emphasizes growth over value. Further, while all U.S. equity market segments declined, large-cap stocks overall had smaller losses than mid- and small-cap stocks. This outperformance of large-cap stocks buoyed the Fund's relative results, as the Fund emphasizes companies with higher market capitalizations within the S&P 500® Index.

Which equity market sectors most significantly affected Fund performance?

The Fund was invested in only seven sectors of the S&P 500® Index during the annual period. Of those sectors in which the Fund was invested, the Fund benefited most from effective stock selection in the information technology, health care and consumer discretionary sectors. Having overweighted allocations to health care and consumer discretionary, each of which was among the best performing sectors in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, added value as well.

Conversely, stock selection in communication services and consumer staples and having an overweight to communication services, which lagged the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, detracted most from the Fund's relative results. Having no exposure to utilities, which was the second best performer in the S&P 500® Index during the annual period, also hurt.

What were some of the Fund's best-performing individual stocks?

The individual stocks that contributed most to the Fund's relative results were biotechnology company Juno Therapeutics, software-as-a-service solutions provider Zendesk and e-commerce giant Amazon.com.

Juno Therapeutics is a clinical stage biotechnology company focused on cellular-based immunotherapies that target patients' own cells to fight cancer. Its shares saw robust double-digit gains during the period the Fund held the position. In January 2018, Celgene announced its acquisition of Juno Therapeutics to expand Celgene's lymphoma program. We sold the Fund's position in Juno Therapeutics following the acquisition announcement. Zendesk's shares surged during the annual period, supported by strong quarterly results, solid execution and growing scale. The company also achieved net income profitability starting in the first quarter of 2018, which was sooner than the market expected. Amazon.com's shares appreciated strongly, as the company executed well and above market expectations. We opportunistically trimmed the Fund's positions in Zendesk and Amazon.com on strength through the annual period.

Which stocks detracted significantly from the Fund's performance during the annual period?

During the annual period, the stocks that detracted most from the Fund's performance were biopharmaceutical company Celgene, interactive entertainment and video game software developer Activision Blizzard and China-based e-commerce retailing giant Alibaba Group Holdings.

Celgene experienced a double-digit share price decline during the annual period, largely reflecting product pipeline risk as well as potential generic competition against its leading drug, Revlimid, upon its patent expiration in a few years. Shares of Activision Blizzard dropped during the annual period, mostly reflecting a fourth quarter 2018 pullback, following an all-time share price high reached in September 2018. Activision Blizzard was partially affected by competition risk and by a third quarter earnings report where revenues came in below expectations. We trimmed the Fund's position in Activision Blizzard during the annual period. Alibaba Group Holdings also saw a double-digit share price decline during 2018, largely impacted by the economic slowdown in China and by the U.S.-China trade war that developed. We opportunistically added to the Fund's position in Alibaba Group Holdings during the annual period.

How did the Fund use derivatives and similar instruments during the reporting period?

The Fund did not use derivatives during the reporting period.

Did the Fund make any significant purchases or sales during the annual period?

We initiated Fund positions in Tencent Holdings, Splunk and Amarin during the annual period. Tencent Holdings is the world's largest online gaming company by revenue and the largest consumer Internet company in China by user scale and engagements. In our view, it is well positioned to benefit from secular growth in several markets, including online gaming, online advertising and financial technology. Splunk is a company in the fast-growing big data and data security industries. We believe it has a strong product portfolio addressing the growing need to monitor information technology systems amid rising complexities. Amarin is a biotechnology company focused on cardiovascular health, with, in our view, upside potential for sales growth over the next few years and net income profitability within the next 12 months. We established the Fund position in Amarin in September 2018 following the release of positive top-line results from the Vascepa cardiovascular outcomes trial, REDUCE-IT.

Conversely, in addition to the sale of Juno Therapeutics, mentioned earlier, we exited the Fund's position in Tesaro, another cancer therapeutics developer, following the announcement it would be acquired by GlaxoSmithKline at a value more than 60% of its prior-day close. We also liquidated the Fund's position in Monster Beverage, an energy drink company in the consumer staples sector. The sale was prompted by what we viewed as the company's slowing growth prospects and a high valuation for this growth.

Were there any notable changes in the Fund's weightings during the 12-month period?

During the 12-month period ended December 31, 2018, the Fund's weighting relative to the S&P 500® Index in the information technology sector increased and its weightings relative to the S&P 500® Index in the consumer staples, health care and financials sectors decreased.

How was the Fund positioned relative to its benchmark index at the end of December 2018?

As of December 31, 2018, the Fund was overweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the health care, consumer discretionary, communication services and information technology sectors. The Fund was underweighted relative to the S&P 500® Index in the financials, consumer staples and energy sectors on the same date. The Fund had no exposure to the industrials, utilities, real estate and materials sectors at the end of December 2018.

What is your tactical view and strategy for the months ahead?

The S&P 500® Index's monthly loss of 9.03% in December 2018 was its worst December decline since 1931, and its 4.38% decline for the year was its worst calendar year performance since 2008. With this U.S. equity market sell-off, we believed the S&P 500® Index looked quite attractively valued at 14.6 times its forward price/earnings ratio at year-end 2018. We expect sales and earnings growth for the companies in the S&P 500® Index to remain positive in 2019 yet slow down from the high rates of growth seen in 2018, as the effect of corporate tax cuts fades and U.S. economic growth moderates. According to FactSet, consensus expectations for S&P 500® Index companies are for approximately 6% sales and 7% earnings growth rates in 2019. With this sales and earnings growth outlook still in expansion mode, equities trading at reasonable valuations and a Fed indicating it is going to be more "patient" in raising interest rates in 2019, we believe the backdrop for U.S. equities is favorable in the new year.

As growth-focused investors, we believe earnings growth is one of the primary drivers of share prices over time.

Given what we saw as a favorable backdrop for U.S. equities at the end of the annual period, we intend to continue to seek companies for the Fund's portfolio that are positioned to grow both their sales and earnings at a pace above the market and their peers. Notably, given our focus on investing in fast-growing companies, the Fund's holdings had an estimated average three-year sales growth rate of approximately 22% at the end of the annual period, nearly three times greater than the S&P 500® Index's estimated three-year 8% sales growth rate as of December 31, 2018. The Fund also had a three- to five-year estimated forward earnings per share growth rate of approximately 24% versus 13% for the S&P 500® Index. With these faster growth rates, we believe the Fund was well positioned to perform well relative to the S&P 500® Index over the long term.

Notes to Financial Statements

1. Significant Accounting Policies

Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc., Value Line Mid Cap Focused Fund, Inc., Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc. (formerly Value Line Income and Growth Fund, Inc.) and Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. (individually a “Fund” and collectively, the “Funds”) are each registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended, as diversified, open-end management investment companies. Value Line Mid Cap Focused Fund, Inc., Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc. and Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. each offer two classes of shares: Investor Class shares and Institutional Class shares. Investor Class shares are available to any investor who meets the Fund’s minimum purchase requirement. Institutional Class shares are designed for investors who meet certain administrative, service and account size criteria. The sole investment objective of the Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc., Value Line Mid Cap Focused Fund, Inc. and Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. is long-term growth of capital. The primary investment objective of the Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc. is capital appreciation and income consistent with allocation of its assets amongst equity securities, fixed income securities and money market instruments. The Value Line Family of Funds (the “Value Line Funds”) is a family of mutual funds that consists of a variety of equity, fixed income, and hybrid funds.

The Fund follows the investment company accounting and reporting guidance of the Financial Accounting Standards Board (“FASB”) Accounting Standards Codification Topic 946 Financial Services — Investment Companies. The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results may differ from those estimates. The following is a summary of significant accounting policies consistently followed by the Funds in the preparation of their financial statements.

(A) Security Valuation: Securities listed on a securities exchange are valued at the closing sales prices on the date as of which the net asset value (“NAV”) is being determined. Securities traded on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations (“NASDAQ”) Stock Market are valued at the NASDAQ Official Closing Price. In the absence of closing sales prices for such securities and for securities traded in the over-the-counter market, the security is valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices. Short-term instruments with maturities of 60 days or less at the date of purchase are valued at amortized cost, which approximates fair value. Short-term instruments with maturities greater than 60 days at the date of purchase are valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices, and commencing 60 days prior to maturity such securities are valued at amortized cost.

Investments in shares of open-end mutual funds, including money market funds, are valued at their daily NAV which is calculated as of the close of regular trading on the New York Stock Exchange (“NYSE”) (usually 4:00 P.M. Eastern Standard Time) on each day on which the NYSE is open for business. NAV per share is determined by dividing the fund’s total net assets by the fund’s total number of shares outstanding at the time of calculation.

The Board of Directors (the “Board”) has determined that the value of bonds and other fixed income corporate securities be calculated on the valuation date by reference to valuations obtained from an independent pricing service that determines valuations for normal institutional-size trading units of debt securities, without exclusive reliance upon quoted prices. This service takes into account appropriate factors such as institutional-size trading in similar groups of securities, yield, quality, coupon rate, maturity, type of issue, trading characteristics and other market data in determining valuations. Bonds and fixed income securities are valued at the evaluated bid on the date as of which the NAV is being determined. Securities, other than bonds and other fixed income securities, not priced in this manner are valued at the midpoint between the latest available and representative asked and bid prices, or when stock valuations are used, at the latest quoted sale price as of the regular close of business of the NYSE on the valuation date.

The Board has adopted procedures for valuing portfolio securities in circumstances where market quotes are not readily available, and has delegated the responsibility for applying the valuation methods to the Adviser. A valuation committee (the “Valuation Committee”) and a pricing committee (the “Pricing Committee”) have been established by the Board. The Valuation Committee oversees the implementation of the Funds’ valuation methods and makes fair value determinations on behalf of the Board, as necessary. The Pricing Committee monitors the continued appropriateness of methods applied and determines if adjustments should be made in light of market changes, events affecting the issuer, or other factors. If the Pricing Committee determines that a valuation method may no longer be appropriate, another valuation method may be selected, or the Valuation Committee will be convened to consider the matter and take any appropriate action in accordance with procedures set forth by the Board. The Board shall review the appropriateness of the valuation methods and these methods may be amended or supplemented from time to time by the Valuation Committee. In addition, the Funds may use the fair value of a security when the closing market price on the primary exchange where the security is traded no longer reflects the value of a security due to factors affecting one or more relevant securities markets or the specific issuer.

(B) Fair Value Measurements:

The Funds follow fair valuation accounting standards (FASB ASC 820-10) which establishes a definition of fair value and sets out a hierarchy for measuring fair value. These standards require additional disclosures about the various inputs and valuation techniques used to develop the measurements of fair value and a discussion of changes in valuation techniques and related inputs during the period. These inputs are summarized in the three broad levels listed below:

- Level 1 — Inputs that reflect unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the Fund has the ability to access at the measurement date;
- Level 2 — Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability either directly or indirectly, including inputs in markets that are not considered to be active;
- Level 3 — Inputs that are unobservable.

Transfers between investment levels may occur as the markets fluctuate and/or the availability of data used in an investment's valuation changes. The inputs or methodologies used for valuing securities are not necessarily an indication of the risk associated with investing in those securities.

The Funds' policy is to recognize transfers between levels at the beginning of the reporting period.

For the year ended December 31, 2018, there were no transfers among levels for each Fund.

An investment asset's or liability's level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level input, individually or in aggregate, that is significant to fair value measurement. The objective of fair value measurement remains the same even when there is a significant decrease in the volume and level of activity for an asset or liability and regardless of the valuation techniques used.

During the year ended December 31, 2018, there were no Level 3 investments in any Fund. The Schedule of Investments includes a breakdown of the Funds' investments by category.

(C) Federal Income Taxes: It is the policy of each Fund to continue to qualify as a regulated investment company by complying with the provisions available to regulated investment companies, as defined in applicable sections of the Internal Revenue Code, and to distribute all of its investment income and capital gains to its shareholders. Therefore, no provision for federal income tax is required.

As of December 31, 2018, and for all open tax years, management has analyzed the Funds' tax positions taken on federal and state income tax returns, and has concluded that no provision for federal or state income tax is required in the Funds' financial statements. The Funds' federal and state income tax returns for tax years for which the applicable statutes of limitations have not expired are subject to examination by the Internal Revenue Service and the state departments of revenue. The Funds are not aware of any tax positions for which it is reasonably possible that the total amounts of unrecognized tax benefits will significantly change in the next twelve months.

(D) Security Transactions and Distributions: Security transactions are accounted for on the date the securities are purchased or sold. Realized gains and losses on sales of securities are calculated for financial accounting and federal income tax purposes on the basis of first-in first-out convention (“FIFO”). Dividend income and distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. Distributions are determined in accordance with income tax regulations, which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles. Interest income, adjusted for the amortization of discount and premium, is earned from settlement date and recognized on the accrual basis. Gains and losses realized on prepayments received on mortgage-related securities are recorded as interest income.

The Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc. may purchase mortgage pass-through securities on a to-be-announced (“TBA”) basis, with payment and delivery scheduled for a future date. The Fund may enter into a TBA agreement, sell the obligation to purchase the pools stipulated in the TBA agreement prior to the stipulated settlement date and enter into a new TBA agreement for future delivery of pools of mortgage pass-through securities (a “TBA roll”). A TBA roll is treated by the Fund as a purchase transaction and a sale transaction in which the Fund realizes a gain or loss. The Fund’s use of TBA rolls may cause the Fund to experience higher portfolio turnover and higher transaction costs. The Fund could be exposed to possible risk if there is an adverse market reaction, expenses or delays in connection with TBA transactions, or if the counterparty fails to complete the transaction.

Income dividends and capital gains distributions are automatically reinvested in additional shares of each Fund unless the shareholder has requested otherwise. Income earned by the Fund on weekends, holidays and other days on which the Fund is closed for business is declared as a dividend on the next day on which the Fund is open for business.

Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc., Value Line Mid Cap Focused Fund, Inc., and Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. distribute all of their net investment income annually. Net realized capital gains, if any, are distributed to shareholders annually or more frequently if necessary to comply with the Internal Revenue Code.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

(E) Class Allocations: All income earned and expenses incurred by the Funds are borne on a pro-rata basis by each outstanding class of shares, based on the proportionate interest in the Fund represented by the shares of such class, except for class specific expenses which are allocated to the respective class. Expenses of the Funds are charged proportionately to each Fund or based on other appropriate methods. Realized and unrealized gains and losses are allocated among the various share classes based on respective net assets.

(F) Foreign Currency Translation: The books and records of the Funds are maintained in U.S. dollars. Assets and liabilities which are denominated in foreign currencies are translated to U.S. dollars at the prevailing rates of exchange at the valuation date. The Funds do not isolate changes in the value of investments caused by foreign exchange rate differences from the changes due to other circumstances.

Income and expenses are translated to U.S. dollars based upon the rates of exchange on the respective dates of such transactions.

Net realized foreign exchange gains or losses arise from currency fluctuations realized between the trade and settlement dates on securities transactions, the differences between the U.S. dollar amounts of dividends, interest, and foreign withholding taxes recorded by the Funds, and the U.S. dollar equivalent of the amounts actually received or paid. Net unrealized foreign exchange gains and losses arise from changes in the value of assets and liabilities, other than investments, at the end of the fiscal period, resulting from changes in the exchange rates. The effect of the change in foreign exchange rates on the value of investments is included in realized gain/(loss) on investments and change in net unrealized appreciation/(depreciation) on investments.

(G) Representations and Indemnifications: In the normal course of business, the Funds enter into contracts that contain a variety of representations and warranties which provide general indemnifications. The Funds' maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown, as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Funds that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, management expects the risk of loss to be remote.

(H) Accounting for Real Estate Investment Trusts: The Funds own shares of Real Estate Investment Trusts (“REITs”) which report information on the source of their distributions annually. Distributions received from REITs during the year which represent a return of capital are recorded as a reduction of cost and distributions which represent a capital gain dividend are recorded as a realized long-term capital gain on investments.

(I) Foreign Taxes: The Funds may be subject to foreign taxes on income, gains on investments, or currency repatriation, a portion of which may be recoverable. The Funds will accrue such taxes and recoveries as applicable, based upon its current interpretation of tax rules and regulations that exist in the markets in which it invests.

(J) Securities Lending: Under an agreement with State Street Bank & Trust (“State Street”), the Funds can lend their securities to brokers, dealers and other financial institutions approved by the Board. By lending their investment securities, the Funds attempt to increase their net investment income through receipt of interest on the loan. Any gain or loss in the market price of the securities loaned that might occur and any interest or dividends declared during the term of the loan would accrue to the account of the Funds. Risks of delay in recovery of the securities or even loss of rights in the collateral may occur should the borrower of the securities fail financially. Generally, in the event of a counter-party default, the Funds have the right to use the collateral to offset the losses incurred. The lending fees received and the Funds’ portion of the interest income earned on the cash collateral are included in “Securities lending income” in the Statements of Operations.

Upon entering into a securities lending transaction, the Funds receive cash or other securities as collateral in an amount equal to or exceeding 102% of the current market value of the loaned securities. Any cash received as collateral is invested by State Street Global Advisors, acting in its capacity as securities lending agent (the “Agent”), in the Value Line Funds collateral account, which is subsequently invested into joint repurchase agreements and/or State Street Navigator Securities Lending Government Money Market Portfolio. When the Funds invest the cash collateral in the State Street Navigator Securities Lending Government Money Market Portfolio, a portion of the dividends received on the collateral is rebated to the borrower of the securities and the remainder is split between the Agent and the Funds.

The Funds may enter into joint repurchase agreements whereby their uninvested cash collateral from securities lending is deposited into a joint cash account with other funds managed by the Adviser and may be used to invest in one or more repurchase agreements. The value and face amount of the joint repurchase agreement are allocated to the Funds based on their pro-rata interest in the repurchase agreement. A repurchase agreement is accounted for as a loan by the funds to the seller, collateralized by securities which are delivered to the Fund’s custodian. The market value, including accrued interest, of the initial collateralization is required to be at least 102% of the dollar amount invested by the Funds, with the value of the underlying securities or cash collateral marked-to-market daily to maintain coverage of at least 100%. Investments made with the cash collateral are disclosed on the Schedules of Investments. As of December 31, 2018, the Funds were not invested in joint repurchase agreements.

As of December 31, 2018, the Funds loaned securities which were collateralized by cash and other securities. The value of the securities on loan and the value of the related collateral were as follows:

Net realized gain/(loss) differs from financial statements and tax purposes primarily due to wash sales and investments in partnerships.

Permanent book-tax differences relating to the current year were reclassified within the composition of the net asset accounts.

A reclassification has been made on the Statements of Assets and Liabilities to increase/(decrease) undistributed net investment income, accumulated net realized gain, and additional paid-in capital for the Funds as follows:

Fund	Undistributed Net Investment Income/(Loss)	Accumulated Net Realized Gains/(Losses)	Additional Paid-In Capital

For Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. advisory fees were computed at an annual rate of 0.72% of the daily net assets during the period. The Adviser also provides persons, satisfactory to the Funds' Board, to act as officers and employees of the Funds and pays their salaries. For the year ended December 31, 2018, the below advisory fees were paid or payable to the Adviser:

Fund	Advisory Fee
Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc.	$ 2,526,305

Institutional Class shares do not pay Rule 12b-1 distribution and service fees, and are not subject to the Plan. For the year ended December 31, 2018, the below 12b-1 fees were paid or payable to the Distributor and waived by the Distributor:

The Funds have a Sub-Transfer Agent Plan (the “sub TA plan”) which compensates financial intermediaries that provide sub-transfer agency and related services to investors that hold their Fund shares of such class in omnibus accounts maintained by the financial intermediaries with the Funds. The sub-transfer agency fee, which may be paid directly to the financial intermediary or indirectly via the Distributor, is equal to the lower of (i) the aggregate amount of additional transfer agency fees and expenses that the Funds would otherwise pay to the transfer agent if each subaccount in the omnibus account for such class of shares maintained by the financial intermediary with the Funds were a direct account with the Funds and (ii) the amount by which the fees charged by the financial intermediary for including the Funds on its platform and providing shareholder, sub-transfer agency and related services exceed the amount paid under the Funds’ Plan with respect to each Fund’s assets attributable to shares held by the financial intermediary in the omnibus account. In addition, the amount of sub-transfer agency fees payable by the Fund’s to all financial intermediaries in the aggregate is subject to a maximum cap of 0.05% of each Fund’s average daily net assets. If the sub-transfer agency fee is paid to financial intermediaries indirectly via the Distributor, the Distributor does not retain any amount thereof and such fee otherwise reduces the amount that the Distributor is contractually obligated to pay to the financial intermediary. For the year ended December 31, 2018, the below Sub TA fees were paid or payable to the Distributor and waived by the Distributor:

Fund	Sub TA Fees	Waived Amount
Value Line Premier Growth Fund, Inc.	$ 70,180	$ —

Value Line Capital Appreciation Fund, Inc.	120,718	796
Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc.	21,763	59

For the Value Line Larger Companies Focused Fund, Inc. the Adviser has contractually agreed to waive certain Fund-wide fees and further assume certain Fund-wide expenses to the extent necessary to limit such expenses (excluding brokerage commissions, interest, taxes, and certain non-routine Fund-wide expenses) to 0.90% of the average daily net assets of each class. In addition, the Adviser and EULAV Securities LLC (the “Distributor”) have contractually agreed to waive certain class-specific fees and assume certain class-specific expenses so that the Institutional Class bears its class-specific fees and expenses at the same percentage of its average daily net assets as the Investor Class’s class-specific fees and expenses (excluding 12b-1 fees and certain non-routine class-specific expenses). The information in the table has been restated to reflect the applicable expense limitation for a class (“Expense Limitation”), each of which can be terminated or modified before June 30, 2019 only with the agreement of the Fund’s board. The Adviser and the Distributor may subsequently recover from a class any fees waived and expenses assumed within three years after the fiscal year end in which the waiver or assumption occurred for such class, to the extent its expense ratio is less than the applicable Expense Limitation or, if lower, the expense limitation in effect when the waiver or assumption occurred.

The Adviser agreed to pay or reimburse certain expenses of the Funds attributable to the Institutional Class, to the extent necessary to limit the Fund’s total annual operating expenses to an amount equal to the operating expense of the Fund’s Investor Class, less the 12b-1 fee paid by such Investor Class, of the Fund’s average daily net assets attributable to the applicable class (the “Expense Limitation”). The Adviser and the Distributor may subsequently recover from the Fund contractually reimbursed expenses and/or waived fees (within 3 years from the month in which the waiver/reimbursement occurred) to the extent that such class' expense ratio is less than the Expense Limitation. The Expense Limitation can be terminated or modified before July 31, 2020 only with the agreement of the Board of Directors. Effective March 17, 2016, and renewed annually, the Distributor contractually agreed to waive all or a portion of its sub TA fees attributable to the Institutional Class and the Adviser contractually agreed to reimburse the Funds to the Expense Limitation.

Fund Expenses (unaudited)

Example

As a shareholder of the Funds, you incur ongoing costs, including management fees, distribution and service (12b-1) fees, and other Fund expenses. This Example is intended to help you understand your ongoing costs (in dollars) of investing in each Fund and to compare these costs with the ongoing costs of investing in other mutual funds.

The Example is based on an investment of $1,000 invested on July 1, 2018 and held for six months ended December 31, 2018.

Actual Expenses

The first line of the table below provides information about actual account values and actual expenses. You may use the information in this line, together with the amount you invested, to estimate the expenses that you paid over the period. Simply divide your account value by $1,000 (for example an $8,600 account value divided by $1,000 = 8.6), then multiply the result by the number in the first line for each Fund under the heading “Expenses Paid During Period” to estimate the expenses you paid on your account during this period.

Hypothetical Example for Comparison Purposes

The second line of the table below provides information about hypothetical account values and hypothetical expenses based on the Funds’ actual expense ratio and an assumed rate of return of 5% per year before expenses, which is not the Funds’ actual return. The hypothetical account values and expenses may not be used to estimate the actual ending account balance or expenses you paid for the period. You may use this information to compare the ongoing costs of investing in the Fund and other funds. To do so, compare this 5% hypothetical example with the 5% hypothetical examples that appear in the shareholder reports of other funds.

Please note that the expenses shown in the table are meant to highlight your ongoing costs only and do not reflect any transactional costs, such as sales charges (loads), redemption fees, or exchange fees. Therefore, the table is useful in comparing ongoing costs only and will not help you determine the relative total costs of owning different funds. In addition, if transactional costs were included, your costs would have been higher.
