HILL LEAVE-BEHIND:

Medtronic and Covidien: Strengthening Healthcare, Investing in U.S. Jobs and Innovation

Medtronic: Medtronic is the world's preeminent medical technology and solutions company, doing business in over 140 countries and specializing primarily in implantable devices and hospital solutions intended to treat chronic disease. Medtronic's products treated over 10.5 million people in 2013. Every three seconds, someone's life is improved and extended by a Medtronic therapy. Medtronic employs more than 25,000 people in all 50 different states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Medtronic is headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota and has significant operations in California, Florida, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Colorado and Texas.

Covidien: Covidien is a leading healthcare technology and medical supplies provider. Covidien has 43,000 employees worldwide, with 14,000 of those employees in the United States. Covidien has its U.S. headquarters in Mansfield, MA, has substantial operations in 15 states and its global headquarters in Dublin, Ireland.

On June 15, 2014, Medtronic announced that it will acquire Covidien, creating a medical technology and services company with a comprehensive product portfolio and broad global reach that is better able to improve healthcare outcomes.

The acquisition combines two companies under a single mission—to alleviate pain, restore health and extend life for patients around the world. The two companies will create a new legal entity, Medtronic plc, which will have its principal executive offices in Ireland, where both companies have a longstanding presence, and its operating headquarters in Minneapolis, where it employs more than 8,000 people. The new entity will be led by Omar Ishrak, current Chairman and CEO of Medtronic. The company remains strongly committed to the U.S. market as a healthcare innovator, strategic business partner and employer of choice.

Benefitting Patients and Strengthening the Healthcare System

Combining Medtronic and Covidien's highly complementary product portfolios will allow the combined entity to address device needs in virtually every major device segment, allowing Medtronic to reach more patients, enhancing efforts to alleviate pain, restore health and extend life.

Our expertise and portfolio of services allow us to serve our customers more efficiently and better address the demands of the current healthcare marketplace with the potential to improve patient outcomes and lower system costs.

We believe the products and services portfolio of the combined company will make it a preeminent leader in delivering solutions to address the major disease states impacting patients and healthcare costs around the world, building on our therapeutic leadership positions in cardiac and vascular disease management, diabetes, neuroscience, general surgery and patient monitoring.

Investing in Innovation, U.S. Jobs

As a direct benefit of the company's new financial structure, Medtronic will commit to $10 billion in technology investments over the next 10 years in areas such as early stage venture capital investments, acquisitions and R&D in the United States, above and beyond Medtronic's and Covidien's existing plans.

This commitment builds on Medtronic's strong history of investing in U.S. medical technology innovation through R&D and by funding and acquiring innovative companies and supporting their growth.

Over the past 15 years, Medtronic has had a successful track record of advancing this innovative sector through its own expertise and scale. It has invested more than $13 billion in U.S. innovation, including acquisitions of companies such as MiniMed, AVE, CoreValve, Sofamor Danek, Cryocath, and ATS Medical. These acquisitions have helped Medtronic grow our U.S. headcount by 20% in the past 10 years. We remain committed to investing in our employees and the communities in which we operate.

The medical technology industry is critical to the U.S. economy. Every $1 billion in advanced medical technology industry revenues in the U.S. generates an additional $1.69 billion in national economic output, almost 13,000 jobs, and $778 million in personal income.

The median annual compensation for a U.S.-based Medtronic employee is ~$80,000, which is significantly above the U.S. median household income of $52,000

Continued Commitment to the United States

The financially efficient structure of this transaction will support Medtronic's commitment to continually invest and innovate and create long-term value for shareholders.

Medtronic will continue to pay all applicable taxes on its U.S. earnings, and this transaction is expected to have a 1-2 percentage point effect on Medtronic's effective tax rate. It is expected to produce additional revenues to the U.S. treasury in the first year due to capital gains realized by shareholders of both companies, and in subsequent years due to the company's continuing growth in the U.S.

Medtronic has been an early and active proponent of comprehensive U.S. corporate tax reform for more than four years to increase U.S. competitiveness. Medtronic will continue working with lawmakers and its peers in the business community to achieve that goal.
