The status of corporate governance at Honda Motor Co., Ltd. (hereinafter, "Honda", the "Company") is as follows.

I. Basic Approach to Corporate Governance, and Capital Composition, Corporate Attributes and Other Basic Information

1. Basic Approach

Honda strives to enhance corporate governance as one of the most important tasks for its management, based on the Company's basic principle, in order to strengthen the trust of our shareholders/investors, customers and society; encourage timely, decisive and risk-considered decision-making; seek sustainable growth and the enhancement of corporate value over the mid- to long-term; and become a company that society wants to exist.

Reasons for non-compliance

-Supplementary Principle 4.1.2 stating that recognizing that a mid-term business plan is a commitment to shareholders, the board should do their best to achieve the plan.

In order to make the optimum business judgment promptly and flexibly in today's constantly changing business environment and at the same time to disclose information in an ideal way for shareholders and investors to help them understand the Company's business strategies and financial performance correctly, the Company announces the long-term business strategy, its visions and business outlook for the single fiscal year.

Table of Contents

The Company's midterm targets are not announced currently; however, the Executive Council decides on a company-wide midterm policy including the midterm targets, checks the progress, conducts analysis, and revises the midterm targets and policies as necessary. The Board of Directors passes the resolution on a company-wide midterm policy planned by the Executive Council, receives reports on the progress and analysis, and monitors/supervises the conditions.

-Principle 4.8 stating that Companies should appoint at least two independent directors that sufficiently have such qualities.

At present, the Company has appointed two outside directors to seek advice on the business activities from objective, broad and highly sophisticated perspectives. However, as for one of the outside directors, a notification stating that he is an independent director has not been sent because he had been executing business of the bank which had business connections with the Company, including deposits, foreign and domestic exchange, etc.

Although not stated that he is an independent director, the director concerned has no special conflicts of interest with the Company, thus the Company judges that no conflicts of interest will arise with the Company's shareholders in general. Based on his abundant experience and considerable knowledge regarding corporate management, he is playing a contributory role in sustainable growth of the company and medium- and long-term enhancement of the corporate value by giving useful advices at the Board of Directors, to a sufficient degree.

The Company aims to have two independent directors fulfilling the independence standards set forth by the company's Board of Directors.

- Supplementary Principle 4.10.1 stating that Companies should strengthen the independence, objectivity and accountability of board functions on the matters of nomination and remuneration, by, for example, establishing optional advisory committees under the board to which independent directors make significant contributions.

Table of Contents

As for the nomination of candidates for directors and corporate auditors, and appointment of the executive officers, based on the policy for appointment of candidates set forth by the Board of Directors including the outside directors, the Board of Directors deliberates and decides the person who agrees with the policy. In addition, remuneration are determined appropriately within the remuneration budgets which resolution is passed at the shareholders meeting and in accordance with the remuneration policy set forth by the Board of Directors including the outside directors and the remuneration standards. Thus, the company believes optional advisory committees are not necessary and existing structure is appropriately functioning.
