Shareholders whose shares are held in custody with Banco Itaú Unibanco S.A. shall request this institution to provide them with the respective list of assignment of rights, or direct their brokerage firm to trade directly on stock exchanges. Furthermore, the trading of the receipts of the shares issued at the Annual and Special Shareholders' Meeting held on April 17, 2013 will not be permitted within the period for exercising the preemptive right, as set forth above.

(ix) "Unsubscribed shares": After the termination of the period for exercising the preemptive right referred to in item 'vi' above, the Company's shareholders will have the right to acquire additional shares, in proportion to the new shares subscribed by them during that period. Such right can only be exercised provided that the shareholder has previously requested on the subscription order ("Order") the reserve of shares, in analogy to the terms set forth in Section 171, § 7º, "b", of Law 6,404/76. The "unsubscribed shares" shall be subscribed within five (5) business days from the announcement of their determination.

There will be two rounds of apportionment, and the shareholders who are interested in participating shall, in addition to requesting the reserve of shares, inform in the Order (i) the maximum number of new shares they want to acquire in the apportionment of "unsubscribed shares"; or (ii) if they intend to acquire all new shares attributed to them in the apportionment of "unsubscribed shares".

The first apportionment of shares ("First Apportionment") will grant to each shareholder a number of shares according to the number of new shares subscribed during the period for exercising the preemptive right, respecting the maximum number of shares informed by each shareholder in the Order, if applicable. After this apportionment, the remaining "unsubscribed shares", if any, will be apportioned again among the shareholders who participated in the First Apportionment. The new apportionment will consider the ratio of new shares acquired in the First Apportionment and, if applicable, the maximum number of shares informed by each shareholder in the Order.

Moreover, considering that Wilkes has submitted to the Company a firm commitment to fully exercise its preemptive right and subscribe all new shares not acquired and/or reserved by the other shareholders of the Company, as applicable, once the two rounds of apportionment described above have been carried out, Wilkes will receive all shares not acquired and/or reserved by the other shareholders of the Company, in addition to the shares corresponding to its preemptive right.

(x) Approval: There will be no new Extraordinary Shareholders' Meeting to approve the capital increase after the period for exercising the preemptive right.
