A Key Acquisition for BMO

By now you will have read Bill's message regarding the acquisition of M&I. I want you to know how excited I am about this very positive news for all of us; employees, customers and our communities.

The transaction we announced aligns with our North American growth strategy. It increases our scale and provides strong entry into new and attractive markets. Customers and communities will benefit from the combination of our two organizations which have complementary capabilities and values.

Our companies are both passionately focused on serving the customer. Whether it's increasing customer acquisition or simply proactively anticipating the needs of our customers and prospects, both organizations are committed to delivering a great customer experience.

While the acquisition is expected to close before July 31, 2011, it's important to understand that we will operate as separate entities and be bound by strict confidentiality until the deal is formally completed. Integration will take time and we need to remain committed to our existing customers and businesses. Our strategic priorities have not changed and continuing to execute on them well is foundational to our long-term success. We must stay focused on our customers.
